Diversity Equity and Inclusion Strategic Plan: Overview

Beginning in September 2015, the University of Michigan School of Social Work (SSW) engaged in a seven month-long planning activity to improve diversity, equity, and inclusion (DEI) within the School in the context of its vision, mission, and goals. We summarize here the results of this planning process that resulted in our 5-year plan. Our plan is grounded in the SSW’s vision, mission, and goals and the social work profession’s goals and ethics.

Social work professional values and the Code of Ethics of the National Association of Social Workers (NASW) serve as guides to the profession and the School of Social Work on working for justice and change by reducing the inequities of poverty, exclusion, exploitation, violence, oppression, powerlessness, and the dominance of particular cultural norms and values. The Council on Social Work Education (CSWE) outlines competencies and practice behaviors for masters-level curricula that are directly related to working for justice and engaging with diverse populations. In this strategic plan, we identify areas we want to consolidate and maintain, and key priorities for intensive work to move to new phases. In undertaking this plan, we define justice broadly, including social, economic, cultural, environmental, restorative, and other foci.

The School of Social Work (SSW) vision is:

A Better Society through Individual and Social Change

The SSW mission statement is:

Advancing the social work profession’s vision and values, the University of Michigan School of Social Work seeks to develop a more equitable, caring, and socially just society. Such a society meets basic human needs, eliminates social and economic inequities, and empowers individuals, their communities, and institutions to reach their aspirations and potential. Drawing on an interdisciplinary faculty within a public university seated in a region of enormous need and promise, the School is dedicated to education, research, and service that fosters progressive change at local, national, and global levels.

SSW’s goals are:

The School will provide an excellent education to students and practitioners in the knowledge and skills needed for contemporary and evolving social work practice.

The School will create and disseminate knowledge about individual, community, and organizational concerns; social issues; social policy; and practice interventions, within a tradition of multi-disciplinary and multi-professional research.
The School will engage in service to the community, the profession, and society through collaboration and leadership.

Our vision, mission, and goals are consistent with the social work profession’s purpose, as defined by CSWE, as well as the NASW Code of Ethics.

The Purpose of Social Work Practice and Education according to CSWE:

The purpose of the social work profession is to promote human and community well-being. Guided by a person-in-environment framework, a global perspective, respect for human diversity, and knowledge based on scientific inquiry, the purpose of social work is actualized through its quest for social and economic justice, the prevention of conditions that limit human rights, the elimination of poverty, and the enhancement of the quality of life for all persons, locally and globally.

The NASW Code of Ethics states that:

The primary mission of social work is to enhance human well-being and help meet the basic human needs of all people, with particular attention to the needs and empowerment of people who are vulnerable, oppressed, and living in poverty... Fundamental to social work is attention to the environmental forces that create, contribute to, and address problems in living... Social workers promote social justice and social change with and on behalf of clients... Social workers are sensitive to cultural and ethnic diversity and strive to end discrimination, oppression, poverty, and other forms of social injustice.

In response to these vision, mission, goals, and ethics statements, the SSW works with communities, both internally and externally to further justice and remove barriers limiting human potential and healthy development. CSWE, the social work accrediting agency, defines field-based education as the “signature pedagogy” for social work, and the SSW partners with 400+ organizations external to the SSW, and 600+ field-based instructors who supervise field education for MSW students. Also, the Society for Social Work Research (SSWR) has defined multiple “grand challenges” for social work, all of which require active engagement in working for societal change. Thus, any plan focused on DEI must not only focus within the SSW, but also must embrace community-based agendas and multiple external constituencies and issues.

We understand Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion as a process to:

- Evolve over time, and is developed and sustained by the efforts of administrators, staff, faculty, students, and many collaborators and constituencies external to the SSW.

- Require a shared working definition and understanding of DEI as the basis for collaboration and community support (students, faculty, staff, field instructors, and community members within and outside the SSW) to work together towards social justice and change.

- Employ a bottom-up, community-engaged, approach to developing DEI in our School and with the various communities external to the SSW.
Emphasize the creation of a just, challenging, and supportive environment for education for people with multiple positionalities in society. Race and ethnicity are important positionalities, but we also include age, class, color, culture, disability and ability, gender, gender identity and expression, immigration status, marital status, physical appearance, height, weight, veteran status, political ideology, national origin, religion/spirituality, sex, sexual orientation and/or identity, socioeconomic status, tribal sovereign status, and others important in particular contexts and environments.

Incorporate the examination of causes and consequences of inequities and mechanisms that sustain inequity, including exclusion, and deep knowledge of oneself as a practitioner, including one’s own worldviews, implicit and explicit biases, knowledge, skills, and interaction styles.

Our plan is based on the need for the physical, psychological, social, moral, fiscal, and academic health of all involved, regardless of what our activities might be (e.g., teaching, learning, research, work to change society).

Our beginning assumptions include the following:

DEI is an educational imperative. Multiple kinds of diversity increase learning and are required to conduct effective social work practice with social justice goals. The UM produced substantial research about the educational benefits of diversity on a great many dimensions. This diversity must exist among students, faculty, administrators, staff, and collaborators.

DEI is required for social work practice and for citizenship in an increasingly diverse and unjust world.

DEI is also an ethical issue, since historically the sociopolitical structure of the SSW and University may have had the effect of excluding or making it difficult for certain groups to have access to knowledge and learning.

DEI is a fiscal issue. Empirical evidence suggests that DEI may attract more talent into the University and thus help increase the talent base of the University, attract different types of research and research funding, and improve the quality of teaching with diverse didactic techniques.

Principles underlying our plan include the following:

DEI issues affect, and need to improve across all constituencies: administrators, staff, faculty, and students.

DEI will only improve when structural barriers, unearned privilege, racism, homophobia, xenophobia, and other forms of fear and oppression are addressed in their multiple manifestations.

DEI needs to be studied and addressed from “insider” and “outsider” perspectives.
• DEI needs to integrate diverse ways of thinking in order to incorporate different definitions of talent, progress, and excellence. Development: Who defines “talent” and are different definitions allowed and valued once DEI is achieved.

• DEI efforts need to include all constituencies of the University (administrators, staff, faculty, and students) in order to develop a workplace and educational climate that feels and is demonstrably equitable and inclusive of all. It also requires strong relationships and commitments to communities outside the UM: field instructors, community members, and those affected by injustice.

Implementation Highlights and Planning Process Used

Implementation Process:

The SSW DEI plan has been integral to the 5-year vision and goals that the faculty has set for the School. The SSW 2017 - 2021 Strategic Plan includes an explicit DEI goal, “Build and sustain a school community that is based on respect for all and dedication to diversity, equity, and inclusion.” It also integrates DEI into strategic goals of the School, including the following: “Improve access to a U-M affordable education,” “Advance diversity, equity and inclusion through knowledge development that emphasizes social justice through public, engaged scholarship and research and dissemination,” and “Engage local, regional, state, national and global communities, organizations, and the University to advance social justice and create progressive change.”

Our plan's implementation structure and process continue to be built upon existing committees and offices in our school of social work in collaboration with our Diversity, Equity and Inclusion office. This strategy is in line with the concept of our DEI office being tasked with catalyzing and coordinating our efforts. It also more easily integrates the DEI work into the ongoing work of our School.

Faculty director Lorraine Gutiérrez and Assistant Director, Lauren Davis, staff the Office for Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion. Three MSW level student employees, one MSW student intern, and a GSSA funded by Rackham provide part-time support. Director Gutiérrez was charged with the overall leadership of the school's efforts and office operations. This also included communicating directly with the dean and associate deans, representing the office to external constituents such as the dean’s advisory group and UM administrators, and meetings with faculty members. Ms. Davis's efforts focused on internal office operations, supervising student employees and interns, developing and facilitating projects with other offices within the school of social work, attending and participating in university wide DEI leads activities, and other related work. The student employees assisted with data gathering and analysis, report writing, event planning and implementation, and communication with our student community. Our model for staffing and operations is dynamic and could change as needs change in the future.

The DEI office director and assistant director participate in SSW committees in order to implement activities. In addition, the director meets with each of the Associate Deans (Research, Faculty Affairs, and Academic Programs) and the Director of Administration, Finance and Operations to discuss objectives and action items that related to each of their portfolios. We work on projects and activities related to their work (e.g. faculty hiring, faculty development, staff hiring, student services, and scholarship) and the plans objectives and action items. Ms. Davis also attends meetings of the Academic Programs management group, which included the directors of all of the academic programs (e.g. Global Affairs, Field Education, Student Services, PhD program, MSW program) in the School of Social Work. The faculty director is also a member of the Dean’s Senior Management team that includes all deans and directors in the School of Social Work.

A significant aspect of our implementation activities requires working with the standing committees in the School of Social Work. The faculty director or assistant director met with committees charged with the work of the school such as the curriculum committee and faculty search committee. Prof Gutiérrez chaired the PRAXIS (Promoting Action for Intersectional Social Justice) committee and Ms. Davis is an ex officio member. The PRAXIS committee “seeks to act for justice by articulating definitions of social justice in micro, mezzo and macro contexts, to develop/recommend goals for the SSW that are consistent with these definitions and to plan actions to move towards these goals.” Therefore, the work of this committee is in line with the DEI strategic plan. Work with the PRAXIS committee included a focus on faculty hiring, issues related to school culture and climate, and a review of the name and charge of the committee. A final report for the PRAXIS committee is included in the supplemental materials. This committee is composed of current students, faculty in different ranks, and staff and serves, in part, as an advisory group to our DEI implementation efforts.

Many internal and external factors contributed to our progress and success of implementing our DE&I plan. Some internal factors included our very comprehensive strategic plan for DEI, faculty and staff support, administrative commitment, and ongoing interest from our student body. External factors include institutional commitment, accreditation standards from the Council on Social Work Education that require that schools of social work develop DEI competencies in their students, and funding support from Rackham for a DEI GSSA.

The search and executive committees were proactive in seeking and ultimately attaining diverse applicant pools for new faculty hiring. Of our new four full time faculty hires for fall 2019 include four women, with two from underrepresented groups. The school was relatively stable with regard to proportion of students of color. This is an area that we will focus on in the coming year by seeking to attract broadly diverse staff and creating stronger relationships with minority serving institutions where we can reach out to a more diverse applicant pool.

The funding support from the Provost’s office has provided some resources for the DEI office. Our dean has provided significant funding from the SSW budget for many of our activities, including DEI related activities in other social work offices. The faculty director receives a significant course reduction and summer support in order to carry out work outside of the academic year. Financial support has also provided us with funds to hire an excellent Assistant Director with significant expertise and experience in program development and implementation, staff supervision, group facilitation, and student engagement. This past year we were awarded funding from Rackham Graduate School to hire a GSSA for the DEI office.

The mission of our school of social work, which reflects the field’s values and ethics, has also contributed to our progress. It clearly states the importance of equity, progressive change, and empowerment. Our accreditation requirements require education regarding human diversity, social justice, and strategies to advance human rights and equity. This provides a context in which diversity, equity and inclusion are recognized as central to our teaching, scholarship, and service. Our plan provided a platform for faculty, students, and staff to identify how these professional commitments can be integrated into the work we are doing and learning to do.

The overall institutional leadership from President Schlissel and Provost Sellers as well as the UM DEI team provided significant support for the work and a platform for our efforts.

Implementation challenges: Our unit made significant progress on our year three plan while facing some significant challenges from within our school, our university context, and the society at large. These conditions included resource allocation, organizational cultures, decentralized structures, and external conditions.

Twelve new faculty joined our faculty this past year all with strong interests and expertise in DEI issues who will contribute to our growth in teaching, research, and service. However, all required an orientation to our school, our DEI strategic plan, and how they can participate and connect to it.

The University of Michigan is a highly decentralized institution and the School of Social Work shares some of this decentralized culture. This type of structure and culture can feed innovation and initiative, but it can also contribute to duplication of effort and lack of coordination. Implementing a strategic plan, and leading an office that is focused on coordination and cooperative activity requires a shift in culture and strong messaging regarding expectations. The message from the DEI office has been that all have contributions to make, we all have things to learn, and that success requires us all to work on our plan. Although the school’s leadership team has reinforced this message, this change in organizational culture has made it difficult to initiate or complete some of the action items because they called for changes in different office’s programs and practices.

This past academic year has included many external conditions with significant DEI implications. These situations have required our team and school to address them with students, faculty and staff. Our students, staff, and faculty have been affected in different ways by messages from our nation’s new leaders regarding immigration, religious freedom, gender equality, LGBT rights, race and racism, and social justice. These issues have impacted communications and interactions inside and outside of classes within and between these different groups.

When conflicts have simmered or emerged our school community has created supports and spaces for reflection to address the feelings and concerns that have been raised. In addition, as a school of social work, we have also worked to support the integration of these issues into our courses and programs so we can equip our graduates to do work consonant with social work values and ethics. Determining how to respond to emerging issues in responsible ways affected our ability to proceed with some of our plans but also led to some innovative and important new directions.

Year Three Data Collection and Evaluation

Our plan touches on every aspect of our school; therefore, our data collection was dependent on gathering information from many different offices within our school. The DEI office has collected data from our meetings with students, faculty, staff and administrators as part of our work. We have collected student enrollment data, data on staff and faculty hiring processes, committee reports, evaluations of staff and faculty workshops, student town hall data, and student financial aid data in evaluating progress on action items.

Data and Analysis: Key Findings

During this past year we were able to make excellent progress on all of our objectives and many of our action items. The overall leadership in our school facilitated this progress.

Our activities and data collection processes reinforced many of the findings of our initial strategic planning process. However, our implementation activities and ongoing data collection have revealed many of the processes behind the issues that were previously identified. In some cases, such as staff hiring, we learned that previous practices had been inadvertently dropped and they were easily adopted. An example of this is posting all of our job openings on the school’s website. In other instances, we learned that resources existed, such as the UM Child Care Subsidy, but that students were unaware of them or unsure of how to access them. In these cases, we have focused on creating greater transparency and information regarding what is available.

In this third year of implementation we have been most successful in completing action steps that related to personnel policies and procedures such as circulating our faculty openings more broadly or providing more professional development opportunities to faculty and staff. We have made excellent progress on action steps for which there was a clear office or position that was responsible, for example developing new pathways to the MSW program, increasing diversity among our part- and full-time faculty, or changing course evaluation questions. We have been more challenged with action items that will require changes in budget or structures and are under longer-term development. Examples of these are analyzing our current budget and policies for MSW student financial aid to move towards a more needs-based approach and increasing staff and faculty development opportunities. These more challenging structural changes will require ongoing attention and support in the coming year.

Pathways to conflict resolution
The School of Social Work has in place internal and external mechanisms for conflict resolution affecting faculty, staff, and students. For faculty the major policy is outlined in our faculty handbook which reflects policies and practices in the Section 10.H. The Dean or one of the Associate Deans attempt to resolve faculty conflicts in an equitable manner before they reach the grievance process.

A grievance process for Post-doctoral research fellows is also outlined in our faculty handbook. It outlines an internal process which involves the Associate Dean for Research or Dean in handling grievances. If a grievance cannot be handled satisfactorily within the school it can be reported to the Dean of Rackham or the UM Ombudsman.

Our MSW and Doctoral program student guides outline mechanisms for student conflicts and grievances. Students are also informed about their rights regarding appeal and other resources. In each handbook, UM SSW staff directs students to the U-M Office of Student Conflict Resolution (OSCR), which administers the Statement of Student Rights and Responsibilities and offers conflict resolution services for cases where the SSW process is not sufficient. Our Social Work Student Union, which represents MSW students, also has an Ombudsperson who can address conflicts within that program.

UM SPG Policy 201.08 covers SSW Staff. The School of Social Work has no additional policy and staff are informed of their options during orientation.

At all levels, most of the conflicts are resolved before a formal case is brought. This is due to the professionalism of our Dean’s office, our SSW Director of Administration, Finance and Operations who handles staff issues, the Director of the Doctoral Program and the Office of Student Services staff. Students are also empowered to resolve their own conflicts. Over the past ten years we have had very few grievance hearings. It is important to monitor both the number of conflicts brought forward and those that transition into a formal grievance process as our student body becomes increasingly diverse and the number of cultural approaches to conflict resolution increases.
