Tenure Track Faculty Positions

Rutgers University School of Social Work (RUSSW) seeks dynamic faculty members to join our productive faculty in continued expansion of the School’s innovative programs, centers and institutes. We plan to add multiple faculty members to our tenure track faculty. Our search is open to candidates from all academic ranks.

We seek highly motivated and productive scholars, and entrepreneurial and innovative thinkers, who have a strong commitment to research, social justice, and social work education. Successful candidates will be interested in inter- and transdisciplinary research that advances the reputation of the School. We are particularly interested in scholars who can advance research agendas in the following areas:

- Substance Use Disorders (see special announcement for this position),
- Digital Innovation and Technology in Social Work (see special announcement for this position),
- Clinical Intervention Research,
- Child Welfare Services,
- Mental Health Services,
- Health and/or Interprofessional Health,
- Gambling and Gaming Addictions, and

Responsibilities include research, teaching, service, and other duties consistent with the missions of the University and RUSSW.

As always, we seek to increase the diversity of our faculty, and welcome applicants from under-represented groups. Our faculty is an open and collegial group, committed to advancing the careers of our members.

Founded in 1766, Rutgers is a major research university, and the State University of NJ. Rutgers is a member of the Association of American Universities (AAU), a federation of 62 leading research universities in the US and Canada, and the Big Ten Academic Alliance, an academic consortium of Big 10 universities that collectively engage in over $10 billion in funded research each year.

RUSSW, ranked #17 among MSW programs in the nation, is among the largest social work programs in the United States, offering BASW, MSW, DSW, and Ph.D. degrees to over 2,000 students across three campuses in Camden (in the Philadelphia metropolitan area), Newark (in the New York metropolitan area), and New Brunswick, which is the flagship campus. The School’s externally funded portfolio exceeds $31 million. The School’s centers and institutes include the Institute for Families, a multi-million-dollar partnership with NJ’s Departments of Human Services and Children and Families, as well as the Center on Violence Against Women and Children, the Center for Prevention Science, the Center for Gambling Studies, the Center for Leadership and Management, and the Huamin Research Center.

Outside the School, there are rich opportunities for collaboration with Rutgers schools and institutes, including the School of Public Health, the School of Communication and Information (with which a new initiative in digital innovation in social work is underway), the School of Management and Labor Relations, the School of Criminal Justice, the Institute for Health, Health Care Policy, and Aging Research, and the Robert Wood Johnson Medical School, to name but a few.

New Jersey is one of the most diverse states in the USA, and Rutgers has one of the most diverse student bodies in the country. The Garden State offers a wide range of communities in which to live, easy access to major cities on the East Coast and Washington, DC, and a great quality of life.
