The School of Social Work at Arizona State University is looking for a postdoctoral research scholar to assist with funded research on intimate partner violence. The main areas of research include intimate partner violence risk assessment and innovative interventions for survivors of domestic violence. Intervention research includes both quasi-experimental and experimental designs. All intimate partner violence research is survivor-centered and interested in contributing to the domestic violence intervention evidence base.

There are additional opportunities to contribute to ongoing analyses of qualitative and quantitative data regarding the criminal and civil justice response to intimate partner violence, risk assessment, and service use among survivors of intimate partner violence. Applicants should have the ability to work both collaboratively and independently.

This is a full-time (1.0 FTE), benefits-eligible, year-to-year appointment at a fiscal year salary of $50,000 (fiscal year is July 1 through June 30). Renewal is possible on an annual basis for up to 3 years. For additional information and policies regarding postdoctoral scholars at ASU, please see https://provost.asu.edu/postdoc.

The School of Social Work is part of the College of Public Programs located at the Downtown Phoenix Campus. The purpose of the School of Social Work is to prepare professional social work practitioners who are committed to the enhancement of individual, family and group problem-solving capacities, and the creation of a more nurturing, just, and humane social environment.

Required Qualifications:
- Qualified candidates must have a Ph.D. or expect to receive a Ph.D. in a theoretically relevant field of study (i.e., social work, women’s studies, nursing) by the start of the appointment.
- Applicants must have experience conducting research related to domestic violence victimization or perpetration, demonstrate strong scientific writing skills, exhibit a comprehensive understanding of regression-based statistics, have a clear understanding of research methods including experimental research design, and have the skills to publish research findings in high-impact peer-reviewed journals.
- Position starts July 1, 2018.

Application Deadline and Procedures:
To apply, visit https://publicservice.asu.edu/content/jobs and upload your application materials as one combined PDF document under job number 12289. Only electronic applications will be reviewed. Incomplete applications will not be considered.

Applications must contain:
- Current curriculum vitae
- Letter (limit 2 pages) summarizing your relevant experience and career goals
- Contact information for three academic references (their position, title, email, phone number)
- Writing sample (published or unpublished) that best exemplifies your scholarly work
The application deadline is March 16, 2018, 5:00p.m. (Arizona); and every week thereafter until the search is closed. Please feel free to contact Dr. Jill Messing (Jill.Messing@asu.edu) with questions. A background check is required prior to employment.

Arizona State University is a VEVRAA Federal Contractor and an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Employer. All qualified applicants will be considered without regard to race, color, sex, religion, national origin, disability, protected veteran status, or any other basis protected by law. ASU’s full non-discrimination policy (ACD 401) is located on the ASU website at http://www.asu.edu/aad/manuals/acd/acd401.html and https://www.asu.edu/titleIX/.

General Information: The School of Public Affairs encourages diversity among its students, faculty, and staff. Arizona State University is committed to building a model for an American research university that measures impact by the success of its students, and faculty committed to the public good with solution-focused research that expands interdisciplinary thinking, and a university that accepts major responsibility for health, economic, and social development of its community.