Position Opening for Full-time Non-tenure Track Instructor in Department of Psychology, DePaul University

The Department of Psychology at DePaul University is seeking a full-time faculty (non-tenure-track, term appointment) for the academic year of 2021-2022 to begin September 2021. Faculty will teach nine courses -- three courses per quarter, for the fall, winter, and spring quarters. Some departmental service is expected. The specific area of psychology training is open, although teaching assignments are based on department needs as well as faculty interest and expertise.

Departmental needs include courses at both the graduate and undergraduate level. Priorities include advanced statistical expertise and interest in teaching Regression and Multivariate courses at the graduate level. Other graduate course needs include research methods, physiological psychology, perception and cognition, grant writing, leadership, organizational theory, and organizational consultation. Undergraduate level needs include psychological measurement, statistics, and research methods among others.

Competitive candidates will have a Ph.D. in psychology, and evidence of, or potential for, teaching and mentoring excellence. Faculty in this position are welcome to engage in research, but this component is not specifically required nor evaluated.

The department seeks applicants that reflect the diversity of its student body and the city of Chicago. Applicants with experience working with a diverse range of faculty, staff, and students, and who can contribute to an inclusive climate are encouraged to identify their experiences in these areas. The department is committed to increasing the diversity of its faculty and students, and sustaining a work and learning environment that is inclusive. Individuals from underrepresented groups and people with disabilities are encouraged to apply.

The department has the largest number of majors in the College of Science and Health with 34 full-time faculty (6 term and 28 tenure-track) with 9 graduate and two undergraduate programs. The Psychology Department is located at DePaul's main (Lincoln Park) campus in the city of Chicago. At this time, in person teaching is expected and students will be required to have the COVID-19 vaccine for fall quarter.

Qualifications

Required Qualifications

Eligible candidates must have a Master’s degree in Psychology.

Preferred Qualifications

PhD degree in Psychology.

Competitive candidates will have both a PhD in psychology and evidence of, or potential for, teaching and mentoring excellence. Faculty in this position are welcome to engage in research, but this component is not specifically required nor evaluated.

Application Instructions

For full consideration, applicants must complete the online application at http://apply.interfolio.com/86580 which requests a cover letter, teaching statement, inclusive classroom statement, CV, publications, teaching evaluations if available, and contact information for recommendation letter writers (letter writers will be asked to upload their letters).

The search committee will begin reviewing applications on June 1, 2021 and continue until the position is filled. Please contact Dr. Alice Stuhlmacher (astuhlma@depaul.edu), Department Chair, for additional questions about the position.