Stratification/Inequality Scholar: University of Colorado

The Department of Sociology at the University of Colorado Boulder is searching for a scholar who specializes in social stratification and inequality, broadly defined. Rank is open (Assistant, Associate, or Full Professor). The applicant will be expected to conduct research in the field of social stratification and inequality and to teach graduate and undergraduate stratification/inequality courses at the beginning and advanced levels. The regular teaching commitment for department faculty is three courses per academic year. The appointment will begin August, 2018. Applicants must have a PhD in sociology or a comparable field by the time of the appointment. ABD candidates will be considered; however, the PhD degree must be conferred by August 15, 2018. A background check is required. Applicants should electronically submit a cover letter describing research and teaching interests, a vita, statements of teaching and research philosophy, one sample research paper, and the names and email addresses of three professional references to www.jobsatcu.com, posting #10158. Review will begin October 15, 2017. Applications will be accepted until the position is filled. Please contact search committee chair Rick Rogers at Richard.Rogers@Colorado.edu for additional information. The University of Colorado is an Equal Opportunity Employer committed to building a diverse workforce. We encourage applications from women, racial and ethnic minorities, individuals with disabilities, and veterans. Alternative formats of this ad can be provided upon request for individuals with disabilities by contacting the ADA Coordinator at hr-ada@colorado.edu.
Carnegie American University (www.academicjobsonline.org), position 9568 (https://academicjobsonline.org/ajo/jobs/9568). If you have questions or are unable to use this online resource, please contact Josie Mulkins, Business Manager, at wgs@uoregon.edu. The University of Oregon is an equal opportunity, affirmative action institution committed to cultural diversity and compliance with the ADA. The University encourages all qualified individuals to apply, and does not discriminate on the basis of any protected status, including veteran and disability status.

The department has strengths in feminist theory; transnational, indigenous, and queer feminisms; and performance studies. We are working to strengthen and deepen the department’s commitment to intersectional feminist studies and queer theory. We have an undergraduate major and minor in WGSS, a Queer Studies minor, and a Graduate Certificate, and we are building towards a new certificate program on gender-based violence and a new doctoral program.

The University of Oregon is one of only two Pacific Northwest members of the Association of American Universities and holds the distinction of a “very high research activity” ranking in the Carnegie Classification of Institutions of Higher Education. The UO enrolls more than 20,000 undergraduate and 3,600 graduate students representing all 50 states and nearly 100 countries.
The UO’s beautiful, 295-acre campus features state-of-the-art facilities in an arboretum-like setting. The UO is located in Eugene, a vibrant city of 157,000 with a wide range of cultural and culinary offerings, a pleasant climate, and a community engaged in environmental and social concerns. The campus is within easy driving distance of the Pacific Coast, the Cascade Mountains, and Portland.

Details can also be seen on the UO Careers webpage: http://careers.uoregon.edu/cw/en-us/job/520615/assistant-associate-or-full-professor-of-womens-gender-and-sexuality-studies

Tenure-Track Assistant Professor of Sociology

Job no: 492542

Position type: Faculty Full Time

Benefit Status: Benefited-Union

Campus: UMass Lowell

Department: Sociology

Salary: Salary commensurate with experience

Applications Open: Aug 22 2017

Applications Close: Open until filled

General Summary of Position:

The Department of Sociology at the University of Massachusetts Lowell seeks applications for a tenure-track Assistant Professor position from individuals whose research and teaching is focused on race/ethnicity. We are particularly interested in candidates whose scholarship includes the experiences of African Americans in the United States, and in candidates who can teach urban sociology and/or quantitative methods in addition to courses on race/ethnicity and the African American experience. We are a social justice oriented department and particularly value scholars whose work connects to communities and/or social policy.

The Sociology Department offers a B.A degree. There is the potential for a 2/2 teaching load for research productive faculty, and all tenure track faculty are eligible for a pre-tenure sabbatical. Sociology faculty also have the opportunity to teach in interdisciplinary graduate programs, including a Masters in Public Administration, a Ph.D. in Global Studies, both of which our Department has close links to.

UMass Lowell is a public university committed to preparing our students for work in the real world—solving real problems and helping real people—by providing an affordable high-quality education. Our campus is bursting with energy—enrollment is up, new academic programs are being launched, and new facilities are being acquired and are under construction. US News and World Report ranks UMass Lowell among the top 200 research universities in the country, and our rankings have been consistently rising. Just 25 miles north of Boston, UMass Lowell faculty benefit both from the rich cultural and community life of the city of Lowell as well as from participation in the broader academic networks in metropolitan Boston.

Minimum Qualifications (Required):

Ph.D. in Sociology or related field required by start date of September 1, 2018

Special Instructions to Applicants:

Please submit a CV, cover letter, teaching statement/philosophy, research statement, and a writing sample. * Names and email addresses of three references will also be required during the application process. The references will be notified and should upload recommendation letters. Only recommendation letters that are uploaded to the system by the referee will be accepted. Emailed or hardcopy letters will not be accepted.

Completed applications received by October 20, 2017 will receive first consideration but review of applications will continue until the position is filled. However, the position may close when an adequate number of qualified applications are received.

---

Assistant Professor of Women and Gender Studies

The Department of Women and Gender Studies (WGST) at the University of Colorado Boulder seeks an interdisciplinary scholar whose work centers on issues of race/ethnicity in the United States for a tenure-track assistant professor position. We encourage applications from scholars trained in traditional disciplines as well as interdisciplinary fields such as American Studies, Ethnic Studies, Gender & Sexuality Studies, Latinx/Chicanx Studies, African-American/Africana Studies, Indigenous Studies, Critical Race Studies (including Queer of Color Critique), Diasporic Studies, Immigration Studies, and Borderlands Studies. A PhD, in one of the above or related fields, is required by the time of appointment. The appointment begins August 20, 2018. The successful candidate will be expected to maintain an active research agenda and provide service to the department, campus, and larger professional community. The candidate should be prepared to develop and teach courses for our undergraduate concentration in race/ethnicity, develop and teach a graduate topics course in race/ethnicity, and teach courses in the WGST undergraduate and graduate core curriculum.

Minimum Qualifications: PhD in a traditional humanities or social sciences discipline or in an interdisciplinary field such as American Studies, Ethnic Studies, Gender & Sexuality Studies, Latinx/Chicanx Studies, African-American/Africana Studies, Indigenous Studies, Critical Race Studies (including Queer of Color Critique), Diasporic Studies, Immigration Studies, and Borderlands Studies.

Applications are accepted electronically at https://cu.taleo.net/careersection/2/jobdetail.ftl?job=10127&lang=en[cu.taleo.net], job number 10127, and should include a cover letter, a current CV, a list of references, two writing samples, and evidence of teaching effectiveness. Review of applications will begin on November 30, 2017; applications will be accepted until the position is filled. A background check will be required of the person to whom the position is offered.
The University of Colorado is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action employer.