Open Rank Position (Assist/Assoc/Full Professor)
School of Social Work

Position Description: The University of South Florida, School of Social Work invites applications for a tenure-track open rank position. We encourage applicants who are interested in joining our School of Social Work scholarly faculty in educating social work professionals and contributing to priority areas of research emphasizing the following: health, mental health, substance abuse, children and families, aging, homelessness, schools, corrections and cultural diversity as it relates to all of these areas. As part of the College of Behavioral and Community Sciences, members of our faculty engage in innovative behavioral, interdisciplinary, translational, and implementation research focused on finding solutions that lead to improvements in the quality of life, health and safety of diverse populations and communities. The responsibilities of this position include: teach doctoral, MSW, and BSW level courses in Social Work; assist in Ph.D. student research and dissertation studies, and engage in scholarship, research, grantsmanship, and service. Salary is commensurate with experience. See website for University and Social Work descriptions: https://www.usf.edu/cbcs/social-work

Minimum Qualifications: MSW and Doctorate in Social Work or related field. A demonstrated record of achievement in teaching, externally funded research, and service.

Preferred Qualifications: 2 years post-graduate clinical experience. MSW from a CSWE accredited School of Social Work. Current external funding strongly preferred.

To apply, visit our careers website at http://www.usf.edu/work-at-usf/careers/ and please apply to Job ID 18741.

For additional information, please contact Dr. Alison Salloum at asalloum@usf.edu

According to Florida Law, applications and search committee meetings are open to the public. For ADA accommodations, please contact Wendy Stoneman-Shelby at wendys1@usf at least five working days prior to need. USF is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Employer.
Established in 2008, the College of Behavioral & Community Sciences is breaking new ground by combining knowledge gained through the behavioral sciences with knowledge gained from the community. Our emphasis on behavioral science reflects a focus on individuals, emphasizing behavioral research that examines the problems and challenges people encounter, as well as their need for clinical and supportive services. Our emphasis on community science reflects our commitment to understanding the larger contextual factors that have an impact on the well-being and safety of individuals and their families, such as the effectiveness of systems and policies that impact and support the well-being of individuals. We accomplish this by engaging community and neighborhood stakeholders in a partnered, participatory manner and by collaborating with local, state, and national organizations in both public and private sectors.

The College of Behavioral & Community Sciences serves approximately 3,000 students with eight undergraduate, eight master's, and seven doctoral programs housed in six academic departments/schools. The College is the home of the Louis de la Parte Florida Mental Health Institute, one of the largest behavioral health research and training institutes in the country as well as 17 specialized Research Centers and Institutes. Our aim is nothing less than to be among the most influential resources for behavioral and community sciences in the region, nation, and world.

Undergraduate programs are offered in the areas of Behavioral Healthcare, Criminology, Aging Sciences, Interpreter Training; Long Term Care Administration; Social Work, and Speech, Language & Hearing Sciences. Master’s programs are offered in Applied Behavior Analysis, Behavioral Health, Child and Adolescent Behavioral health, Cyber Crime, Criminology, Criminal Justice Administration, Gerontology, Rehabilitation & Mental Health Counseling; Social Work, and Speech-Language Pathology. Doctoral programs are offered in Aging Studies, Applied Behavior Analyses, Audiology, Behavioral and Community Sciences, Communication Sciences & Disorders, Criminology, and Social Work. In addition, the College collaborates with the College of Public Health in offering graduate programs in Behavioral Health.

In addition to formal degree programs, the College offers eleven graduate certificates and one undergraduate certificate.

The College is the home of the Louis de la Parte Florida Mental Health Institute, one of the largest behavioral health research and training institutes in the country as well as 19 specialized Research Centers and Institutes. Our aim is nothing less than to be among the most influential resources for behavioral and community sciences in the region, nation, and world.

The scholarly work of the faculty in the College is supported through grants funded by the National Institutes of Health (NIH), National Institute on Aging (NIA), Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), U.S. Department of Education (DOE), the Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration (SAMSHA), the National Science Foundation (NSF), the Bill & Melinda Gates Grand Challenges Explorations, and the Health Resources and Services Administration (HRSA) and other sponsors.