The University of Wisconsin-Madison School of Social Work seeks exceptional candidates for an opening at the Assistant Professor (tenure track) level beginning August 2018. A Ph.D. in Social Work or a related field is required prior to start of appointment; an M.S.W. and professional social work practice experience are preferred. Duties include teaching courses in the social work field at the undergraduate and graduate levels, conducting scholarly research in an area of specialization related to social work, mentoring of Ph.D. students, and professional and university service as appropriate for career stage. Applicants should show evidence for ability to achieve excellence in a program of research and teaching.

A joint appointment with Chican@ and Latin@ Studies may be possible for interested candidates.

The University and the School of Social Work promote excellence through diversity and encourage all qualified individuals to apply. The School of Social Work is comprised of faculty and staff that work collaboratively to provide a high quality education and professional growth experiences for students. The School values the many strengths that diversity brings to our profession, and is committed to contributing to the diversification of the social work profession. As part of that, the School aims to foster a climate of inclusion for all faculty, students and staff; it is expected that instructors will have the ability and motivation to teach and mentor diverse students.

To apply, visit http://jobs.hr.wisc.edu/cw/en-us/job/496241/professor-of-social-work to view posting and select “Apply Now” to begin application process. Applications must be received by November 15, 2017 to receive full consideration. Applications will be accepted until position is filled.

The University of Wisconsin-Madison is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer. A background check will be required prior to start of appointment.