U-M courses are currently all online and final exams will be taken remotely. Classes will be taught in alternative formats, which may include holding a course or conference call over BlueJeans, recorded lectures posted to Canvas or conference calls on the phone. As each faculty member has made plans that make the most sense for their course, expect different approaches.

The School of Social Work is open. Check the yellow box at the top of the SSW COVID-19 website for up to date information.

If your field agencies are open you should plan to attend field. However, as emerging professionals, you are empowered to make an informed decision and can consider options regarding attendance in field related to health and safety. Please communicate your intentions with your field instructor. If you have any questions please contact your field faculty.

Be aware that there are members of our social work community who may be affected by the impact of this epidemic on their families, friends and home communities. We have heard reports of xenophobia associated with the outbreak – which we denounce in the strongest terms. During this time, it’s important that we support one another, promote a healthy community, and stay up to date on the latest information from our health professionals.

Resources and support are available:

- Office of Student Services
- Counseling and Psychological Services.